At a recent meeting of the Hancock County School Board, a resolution was passed, adopting a gradual plan of desegregation of County Schools, beginning with the first grade, commencing in September, 1965.

This plan was decided on after a thorough investigation of Titles IV and V of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and the regulations of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Board decided that since the Courts could order desegregation at any time, that they had a decision to make, which would effect the manner in which desegregation would be carried out in this County.

In view of these facts, the following resolution was adopted:

Moved by Mr. Necaise, and seconded by Mr. Larsen, the following Resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, the Hancock County School Board has made and caused to be made a thorough investigation of Titles IV and V of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and the regulations of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and through its duly authorized representatives has investigated the situation in which it finds itself, and has conferred with various representatives of other School Boards, State officials, and representatives of State Agencies; and

WHEREAS the Hancock County School Board has determined from a long line of decisions of the United States Supreme Court, beginning with the 1954 decision in the Brown case, and with the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, that it no longer has a choice as to the matter of desegregation or segregation of the School System, as it has been found that the Court would order desegregation in any instance, but that under the regulations as promulgated by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, this Board has a decision to make, which in the manner in which desegregation should be carried out; and

WHEREAS it has been determined that the welfare of the School System, and of the school children of Hancock County School District requires that the Hancock County School Board make a bona fide effort toward obtaining the maximum amount of financial aid to the School System and at the same time retain as much control over the desegregation plan as possible, and to that end should make an effort to submit a plan of desegregation to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for its approval; and

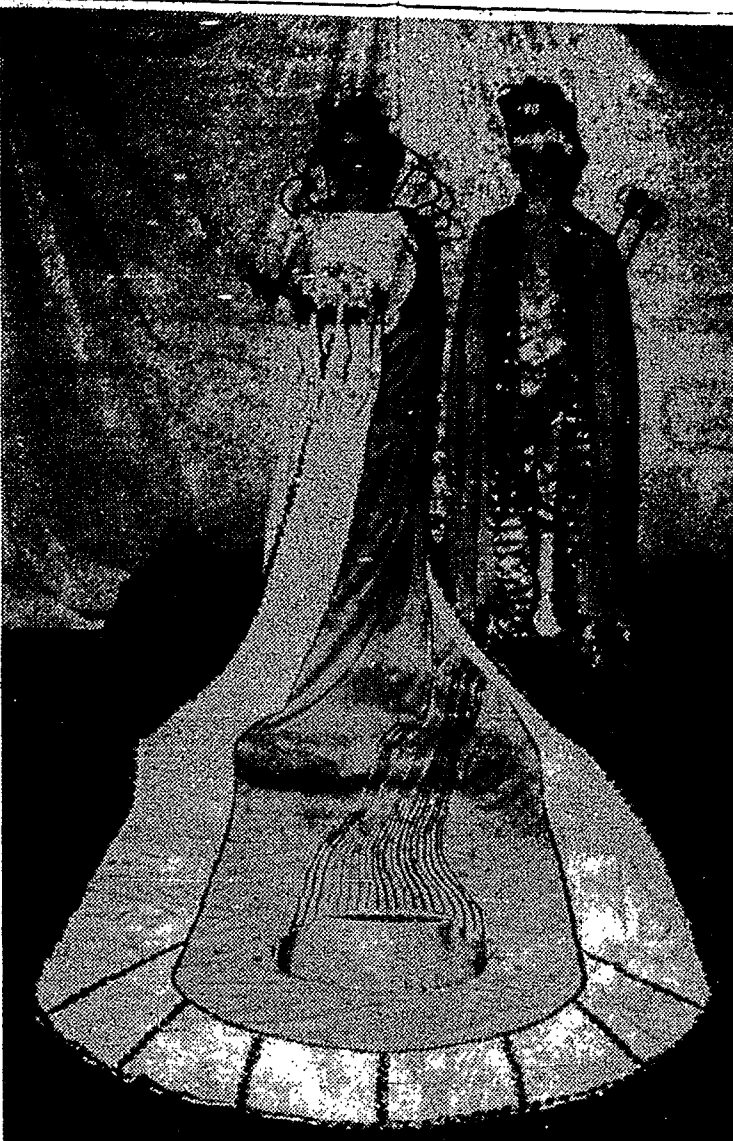

WHEREAS the Hancock County School Board has determined that a plan of desegregation has been approved by the United States District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi, and that said plan of desegregation has recognized an orderly desegregation of one (1) grade a year; and

WHEREAS the Hancock County School Board has determined that the best plan to submit for consideration by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (Continued On Page Two) all fishing over the week out of the question, that is our section. Muddy water was every where even in the beyond main Pearl River itself was rising. The heavy rains upstate last night and high tides had the bad over the Marshes. It looks like it will be quite a while before water fishing gets back to Jordan River and tributaries. Besides, the sudden freeze visited this section Thursday a low of 22 degrees didn't help matters any.

ld Martensen who r-pre-Stratton - Baldwin Co. Inc., Orleans is a visiting sales-who makes calls at the Sports. Harold being a sports himself knows his stock and ve a lot of information to seeking most all sporting. What we like about him is hasn't a particular item he rely find it. Will be looking to a couple of fishing trips pies also known as white and Sac-a-lait are members perch family and grow to a size. They are caught on worms, crayfish and pieces mp and also on the fly rod with a piece of pork rind. The best way to catch them on the fly rod is to let the bait go to the bottom and retrieve it upward. They give you a good fight and are ideal for eating. They are found mostly in lakes and bayous where the water is shallow and grass is under the water as well as around tree tops and other obstacles in the water.

Grass activities wound up in New Orleans with thou- of tired people returning to homes. In Bay St. Louis those stayed here enjoyed a real with dancing and gaiety on es. The folks who staged this carnival deserve a lot of for their efforts.

For those who like to eat fresh water catfish the ponds around here are full of them. They are small in size but have a wonderful flavor when it comes to eating. The best way we think to prepare them is to snip off the fins first, skin them by cutting the skin just behind the head and pull the skin off with a pair of pliers. You can tenderloin the fish or cut in half to fry. Fry in plenty of grease until brown. Be careful not to be struck by a fin they are poisonous and cause a lot of pain.

A package of dynamite surrounded by scales" is the way one veteran angler described the bass or green trout as we know them hereabouts. Catching the bigger basses, be it large mouth or small mouth, requires a knowledge of their nature, a study of their weaknesses. One thing the bass finds hard to resist is a lure being retrieved at an exceedingly fast speed. Another is a lure moved so slowly that it taxes your patience. Bass are caught mostly along the banks of bayous on flats in lakes where they feed. From now on when the water gets warmer the bass will hit most any type of surface bait especially when the tide is falling. All you need is a fly or casting rod with the proper bait. If you don't know what bait to use ask some local fisherman and he will tell you what they are hitting. Don't buy a bait because it looks good, there are a lot of baits made just to sell. Get a bait suited to this section and see the results you will have. Don't be like the fisherman who thinks he knows it all. I have been fly fishing for a number of years and still learn something about the traits and actions of bass every time we go out. The expression "Poor fish" is erroneous they know some things we don't.

Did you know that small frogs are ideal bait for catching bass. Crickets, grub worms and grass hoppers are just as good. Use a perch pole with light line and small snark. You can fish from the bank with wonderful results.

Don't worry too much about the rains unless they are of long dura-

John has always participated in fishing and hunting. His most favorite sport was hunting rabbits and still goes after them with his old faithful hounds. Any time he is off from work you will find him in the woods chasing the cotton tails when rabbit hunting is in sea-

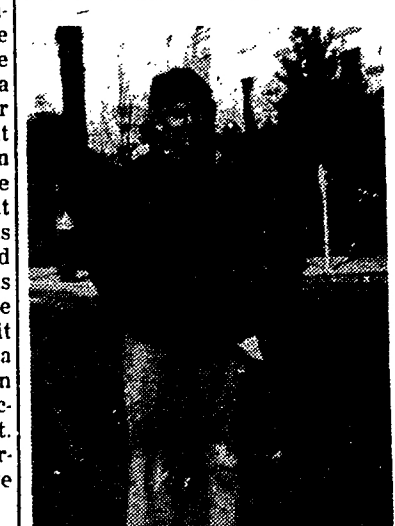

Local rains that don't muddy the water are beneficial to fishing. They wash worms from the grass and bushes that fall in the water and are ideal bait for most fish. Fish seem to strike best after a light shower.

Whether you know it or not, snatched up small hard crabs, oysters and soft crabs are ideal baits for catching red fish. Fiddlers are ideal for catching sheepshead. Fishing around sunken boats, tree tops and piling are the best places for catching them.

If you were to ask ten salt water fishermen which is the hardest striking fish of all, nine would say the striped bass. The tenth hasn't caught one yet! Big top water lures, wiggling underwater baits and jigs produce results. Uncle Josh striped pork rind is a good addition to most any underwater bait. Live bait is also effective. We have a lot of striped bass in our waters.

The beauty of fishing in this part of the woods is the fact that you can go only a couple of miles from home and be in the fishing grounds. Jordan River and its tributaries are full of both salt and fresh water fish. While some fishermen are catching red fish, speckles, sheepshead and what have you others are catching bass and perch in the same territory. To some still fishing with worms, etc., bring good results.

IRS GIVES HELPFUL HINTS IN MAKING TAX RETURNS

SURVIVING SPOUSE

Widows and widowers are entitled to special tax benefits, Mr. J. G. Martin, Jr., Director of Internal Revenue, Jackson, Mississippi, advised today.

A widower or widowers who has not remarried by December 31 may file a joint return, taking advantage of the lower rates applicable to this return, if his spouse died during the tax year.

For the next two years, if the taxpayer has not remarried, the tax is computed at the rates applicable to joint returns if he maintains a home for himself and his dependent child. Although in these two succeeding years the joint return rates may be used, no exemption is allowed for the deceased spouse.

Special benefits to a surviving spouse are allowed only if Form 1040 is used in filing his return.

Document 5107 which furnishes more detailed information on this subject is available upon request from the Internal Revenue Service.

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

Social Security benefits are not taxable and should not be reported as income on your Federal income tax return, Mr. J. G. Martin, Jr., Director of Internal Revenue for the Jackson District, advised.

Social Security benefits, however, are used in computing the retirement income credit and also are important in determining a claim for a dependent exemption. When an individual receives Social Security benefits which are less than one-half of his total support, Mr. Martin added, your contribution toward his support may entitle you to claim him as a dependent. Remember, you must furnish more than half of the dependent's total support for the year.

SELF-EMPLOYMENT TAX

In business for yourself? If you worked for yourself in 1964 and had net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more, you must file a Federal income tax return and pay the self-employment tax, Mr. J. G. Martin, Jr., Director of Internal Revenue for the Jackson District, said today.

Self-employed persons with questions on this subject will find the answers in Document No. 5047, "Self-Employment Tax."

Special rules apply to the self-employment tax for farmers. These are explained in the official Publication No. 225, "Farmer's Tax Guide."

Both of these publications are free and are available upon request from the Internal Revenue Service.

HEAD OF HOUSEHOLD

Unmarried persons who qualify as "heads of households" benefit from lower tax rates, Mr. J. G. Martin, Jr., Director of Internal Revenue Service of the Jackson District, explained today.

Tax law provides special tax rates for you if you are unmarried (or legally separated on the last day of the year and furnished over half the cost of maintaining a home for the full year for at least one relative.

Whether the relative must qualify as a dependent and whether he must actually live in your home depends upon the relationship.

All relatives, other than your parents must actually live with you. With the exception of your unmarried child, grandchild, or step-child, all other relatives must qualify as your dependents.

Mr. Martin said taxpayers will find helpful information on head of household benefits in Document No. 5107, "Filing Your Tax Return." It is available on request from the Internal Revenue Service.

RETIREMENT INCOME CREDIT

Tax relief is available to many pensioned persons through the "retirement income credit" provision of Federal income tax laws, Mr. J. G. Martin, Jr., Director of U. S. Internal Revenue for the Jackson District, reminded retirees today.

Document No. 5018 which furnishes more detailed information on this subject is available upon request from the Internal Revenue Service.

FARM SUBSIDIES SUFFERING BECAUSE FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Senator James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) charged this week that farm subsidies are being made "the whipping boy for the financial problems of our government."

In a speech on the floor of the U. S. Senate, Eastland declared that Budget Director Kermit Gordon "assaulted the farmer and farm programs enacted by Congress in an unjustified manner in a recent national magazine article."

"In this act," Senator Eastland said, "Mr. Gordon usurped the policy-making power of the Congress in a vital domestic field. The Bureau of the Budget was not created for this purpose."

He characterized the farm program as "the highest - paying investment of public funds yet made."

Senator Eastland said that since Gordon's article several newspapers have taken up the criticism of farm expenditures. He cited in particular a syndicated column by Eric Sevareid which described the farm program as a "conspicuous waste" and said that spending is "about seven times what it was 30 years ago."

The statement is misleading, Senator Eastland said, because proportionately the total federal budget has far outdistanced farm spending. "In 1935," he noted, "18.7 per cent of the national budget was in agriculture and in 1965 only 7.03 per cent is in agriculture. In 1935, half of the federal expenditures in agriculture were in public works programs, blacktopping streets in small communities, purchasing and planting pines on eroded lands, and providing employment for the Civilian Conservation Corps. In my state the lands so purchased and forested are now a part of the national forests and are public domain. The costs, however, were charged to farmers."

"In 1935," Senator Eastland said, "the average citizen of this country spent 23.4 per cent of his income for food. In 1965, however, the forecast is that he will spend only 18 per cent of his income for food. If we were spending 23.4 per cent of our income for food in 1965, our food bill would be $106.6 billion as against the $82 billion that will be spent. The farmers' efficiency then has contributed $24.6 billion to the American citizen in additional purchasing power, and the farmer has been rewarded with a per capita income of less than half the national average."

"Any further deterioration in farm income will simply aggravate the movement of farm people to industrial areas, disturb the financial integrity of industries serving farmers with production needs, and the distribution of the commodities he produces."

"I warn the members of this Congress and the citizens of this nation that if we pursue this fallacy of economy that the farmers' ability to produce will be reduced and the cost to consumers and of additional public welfare programs due to displaced farm pool seeking employment in industrial areas, will be multiplied many times over."

The Mississippi Junior Chamber of Commerce was organized in Meridian, Miss., in 1935, with twelve chapters affiliating. The organization now has 89 clubs.

NASA AREA MAY BECOME MILD LIFE MANAGEMENT AREA

NASA and a large area surrounding NASA in southwest Mississippi may soon become a wild life management area. It is hoped by Game and Fish Director, James Carraway. This area will be designated specifically for the recreation of the sportsmen in that area.

The land, which is the buffer zone of the Mississippi Test Operations, is slated for intensive study by Game and Fish technical men before the end of March. Purpose of the study is to determine the feasibility of converting the 130,000 acre section into a game management area. At the same time, 13,500 acres owned by NASA will be studied for the possibility of closing this area to all hunting for a refuge area. A dual purpose will be served by closing this smaller area to hunting; creation of a refuge for wildlife, and protection for hunters in the test operations.

DEPENDS ON LANDOWNERS

Success of the proposed program would hinge on the cooperation of individual landowners of the huge area. Permission to use the land for a management area would have to come from this group. General consensus, based on talks with several of these landowners, is that they would favor the program, provided that the area would be open to the public in season and not set up for special interest groups.

Representatives of the U. S. Department of the Interior have stated that the government would provide all help possible in conjunction with the state Game and Fish Commission and the wishes of the landowners in setting up a management area.

Representatives of paper companies, which own some of the lands involved, have stated that they would be in accord with the wishes of the private landowners, but that the area should be a public reserve, not organized for any hunting club.

"With the support of local citizens, this area can conceivably become one of the best management areas this or any other state can offer the sportsmen," said Carraway. "With proper protection and supervision, this area will support a plentiful amount of game of many types."

At the present time, 12,000 infants are born each year who are or will become, mentally retarded. One is born every five minutes. Of this number, 4,200 (or 1/10th of 1% of all births) will be retarded so severely that even as adults they will be unable to care for their own needs of daily living. About 12,000 (or 3/10ths of 1% of all births) will remain below the seven-year intellectual level. The remaining 110,000 (or 2/3 of all births) are those with mild retardation and represent those who can, with special training and assistance, acquire limited job skills and achieve a high measure of independence. With statistics such as the above it can be easily understood why mental retardation should be the concern of every citizen. Those who are able to do so should support their community Retarded Children's Association either on an active or working basis, or they should help if possible in a financial way. Unfortunately, so many community associations lack an important element that hampers effective operation. This important element is community concern. There are various ways in which one may help. For information please contact the local Retarded Children's Association.

THE WORLD

THE CHURCH FOR ALL

ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the church's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Strange sight? Not really! We're getting used to seeing pictures of our own earth. We're getting used to the concept of a universe instead of a world. We can believe that the moon's soon to become a landing place.

Does this familiarity with space — does our thrust into the physical unknown — make the basic facts of life and death any simpler to us? Certainly not! Man is in a peculiar position, today. The more he explores, the more vast he finds what lies ahead of him. The more he learns, the more he discovers how infinitely much there is to know.

More than ever before, man realizes how great the hand of God has been in fashioning this world, this universe, we live in. That's why people everywhere — including scientists, astronauts, space pioneers — are men of religious conviction. Go to church this Sunday, and see for yourself.

STENNIS FAVORS KEEPING FILIBUSTER RULE INTACT

(By Senator John Stennis)

WASHINGTON — There will not be a more important issue before the Senate at this session than the proposal to change the so-called filibuster rule, so that less than two-thirds of the Senators present and voting can cut off debate.

I shall certainly make the strongest fight within my power to prevent any weakening of this rule.

In the hearing before the Senate Rules Committee last week I testified in opposition to any changes and pointed out that if the Senate reaches the point when legislation can be whisked through without full debate, it could be a step toward a disastrous end of the greatest system of government the world has ever known.

This rule change was first proposed at the beginning of the session in January. Our Southern group succeeded in preventing its immediate consideration by having it referred to the Rules Committee. The Rules Committee is scheduled to file its report on March 9. We are already planning our strategy and laying plans to prevent any change in this rule.

Free and full debate is the very foundation of our form of government. Any attempt to restrict full discussion by the Senate is a real and present danger that can destroy the checks and balance system set up in the Constitution and which we have followed during most of the history of our Nation.

One of the rights of a democracy is the right fully to explain and to plead one's position.

The closure rule protects the rights of the majority and the minority, but it does not arbitrarily or unreasonably restrict the legislative process. The Senate is a distinct body in the legislative process, different from any other. In the Senate each State is represented by two Senators, regardless of population. Thus, the people of any State, regardless of its geographical size or population, may be heard with the same strength and clarity as any other State.

It is a basic and undeniable fact that the Senate, under our form of government, is truly the forum of the States. It is not so much a matter of States' rights, as that term is ordinarily understood, but the fact that the Senate is exclusively representative of the individual States as units of our Federal system. I am continually reminded of the inscription, indelibly preserved on the front of the New Senate Office Building, which says: "THE UNITED STATES SENATE: THE LIVING SYMBOL OF OUR UNION OF STATES"

On many occasions the rights of free men have been preserved because they have been protected under the rule of free debate in the Senate. There is no right or liberty more essential and vital than the protection and representation of the minority. I shall fight this proposed change to the last ditch.

The state headquarters building of the Mississippi Junior Chamber of Commerce is located in Meridian, Mississippi, the birthplace of the State Jaycees.

BIOLOGIST TO ASK OYSTER EXTENSION

A recommendation that Mississippi's oyster dredging season be extended will be made to the Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission by its marine biologist.

"I'm going to recommend an extension of the season for at least a week," said William J. Demoran, the biologist, following an inspection of the dredging reefs.

The season, which opened at sunrise Feb. 18, is normally scheduled to close at sunset Sunday, Feb. 28, but with the extension, would be continued until sunset March 7.

About half the number of boats as was expected dredging oysters in Mississippi is possibly the main reason for the season being extended.

The inspection Friday revealed that there are still oysters on the reefs, although there is less area suitable for dredging this year than during the past two years.

This season, 110 permits were issued for boats over 30 feet to dredge on the state reefs, compared to more than twice that many last season.

One reason for less boats in the sea is because of fewer out-of-state fishing boats working in Mississippi. The season this year opened at the same time of dredging season in other states.

"We should harvest all of the marketable oysters we can each year," Demoran stated.

He explained any marketable oysters left could be lost before the next season. Working oyster reefs also prevents oysters from growing in undesirable clusters.

Dredge boats this year are confined to working on the reefs closer to the coastline. This summer oyster predators caused heavy damage

ROAR LIONS ROAR

By
Farris M. Gregory

Anyone who calls himself a Lion, carries on at club meetings like a lampshade-on-the-head comedian, and lends his off-key voice to songs like "Don't You Hear Those Lions Roar!" deserves, it would seem, all the jokes that cartoonists, satirists, and script writers have been heaping upon him for years.

Yet, paradoxically, this Lion with a capital L, is probably the most misunderstood and underestimated man in America today. This Lion has a responsibility to the community in which he lives. This man who joins the clan of the International Association of Lions Clubs is among more than 700,000 members affiliated with more than 17,000 local clubs in 119 nations. The organization's 45-year growth and list of achievements for the public welfare have not been brought about simply by meetings and convention hall horseplay.

The Lions, for example, have long been active in sight conservation work and in aid to those already visually handicapped. The Association has provided sight-testing equipment for schools; it has financed the purchase and fitting of eye glasses for the underprivileged; it has trained seeing-eye dogs for the blind; it has assisted in the rehabilitation and employment of the sightless; it has carried on year round campaigns for the prevention of blindness. Virtually every club in the far-flung organization conducts some kind of program in this area of health.

"Lionism" — as the club's good works have been labeled — also brings about the construction of hospitals, clinics, community centers, schools, orphanages, camps for children, libraries, field houses, and swimming pools where they are needed. Other projects produce community ambulance services, mobile X-ray units, visiting nurse programs, driver-training schools and highway safety plans, school buses, scholarships, and educational and entertainment programs aimed at curbing juvenile delinquency.

Who are the people who make up the Lions? They are a cross-section of American businessmen, farmers, educators, merchants, professionals, men, clergymen, and the like. They ring doorbells and sell light bulbs and peddle tickets on a new car to raise money.

Membership in the organization is by invitation only and is restricted to males. There are no specific qualifications for membership, but applicants are carefully screened. The amount of dues paid is established by the individual club and averages about $2.00 a month. If you are invited to become a member of a Lions Club, make one

LOCAL OFFICIALS COOPERATING WITH STATE LAW OFFICERS

Walter M. Hester, Motor Vehicle Comptroller, stated today that many Mississippi truck stop dealers are cooperating with his department in its drive to eliminate fuel tax law violations. An example, he pointed out, is Mr. Olen T. Coker, owner of the Caravan Truck Stop in Ocean Springs, Mississippi.

Mr. Coker discovered one of his blank fuel tax receipts missing February 18, 1965.

He lost no time in notifying Comptroller Hester. An alert notice was supplied through the department's vast communication system to revenue inspectors throughout the state. In less than an hour after the theft, Revenue Inspector Bruce Thompson at the Bay St. Louis truck inspection apprehended trucker Roy T. Jones a resident of Alabama.

Justice of the Peace Nolan S. Lauer, District 5, of Hancock County, fined trucker Jones $50.00 plus court cost for the fuel tax receipt theft. According to Comptroller Hester, had Mr. Olen Coker not been prompt in reporting the receipt theft, the tax violator would have been given credit for Mississippi fuel taxes as if he had paid the required fuel taxes to transport his truck across the state.

Mississippi is greatly increasing its fuel tax collections due to the efforts of taxpayers like truck stop owner Coker, Mr. Hester intimated.
